which it was not possible for a rich man to pass, meant nothing more nor less, than that very opening that joins system with system, planet with planet, and cosmos with cosmos.

When 1 was subjected to the electric currents from the battery and the pressure rose so high as to exceed the limits of my endurance, what happened I have told already and it is needless to repeat that here once more. All that 1 want to say is, that 1 felt as though some subtle force, or being,' finding me quite power-less against the high-pressure electric charge, took the advantage of entering my persons, by forcing out a certain portion of my inner being through the head. The effect of it reminds me of what we had read, while in College from Milton, regarding the birth of 'Sin from out of *SatanV head.
